SCORE IS TWO TO MOTHING

Chalmers Does Nice Twirling for the Quakers, Too, and Gets Support That Is of the Highest Order.

The hoodoo that has been Leon Ames's bête noire ever since he broke into the Giants' line-up, many seasons back, dogged his unwilling master again yesterday and let the Philadelphia nine get away with 2 HOME RUNS FOR SCHULTE the luckiest kind of a victory by the score of 2 to 0. Ames pitched marvellous ball, and in the eight innings in which he performed only two of the Quakers were able to get safe hits, and those were scratches. But through errors in succession by Larry and, as it proved, winning run of the game

Chalmers, who has been doing some re- | 9 to 1. markable twirling for the Quakers, was Ames's immediate opponent, and he pitched brilliantly, although not nearly as well as Ames. The Giants connected with his delivery for four hits, only two of which were bunched in a single inning. The two that came in the same inning were as unproductive of runs as if they had been strike outs.

If Ames had had the support that fell to Mathewson's lot in the first game of the Philadelphia series, on Friday, there would have been a different story to narrate. Every man in the infield made an error and errors in so close a game were little short of suicidal. The Phillies did not have the opportunity to take advantage of them until the eighth, when the brace of errors already mentioned were enough to give them the game.

cracks were made by the Phillies Fletcher's foozle was the most excusable of the lot, for the vicious grounder that Knabe sent at him was just a trifle out of the ordinary in its viciousness. Snodgrass, in short centre field, made the only notable catch of the game on the Giants' side when he ran away in on Walsh's Texas handled.

Titus's wallop that struck a girder in the right field stands and bounded down into safe territory let the Quaker fielder trot around the bases for a home run in the ninth.

in their half of the cighth the Giants had a chance to do something. So it seemed to McGraw, at any rate. Meyers sent Murray in to bat for Ames, putting Wiltse on first to run for Meyers. Washington, Aug. 12.-Ray Fisher was a ouzzle to Washington to-day, and the wining streak of the Capitol City men was broken off short by the Yankees. The Senators went down to defeat by the score of to 0 in a brilliantly played game. Dark, lowering clouds kept the attendance down to five thousand, but the threatening elements had no effect on Chase's men, who played big league ball.

Fisher held the home team down to half a dozen hits, and kept them so well scattered that only on rare occasions did the Senators threaten the plate. Brilliant field ing sided the cause materially. Birdie Cree saved Fisher in the seventh inning when, with Conroy on first base, he raced 0 0 0 0 1 0 2 3 2 8 fast to Cunningham's long drive, which 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 2 2 looked good for three bases.
